

(RE)NEGOTIATING
EXPERTISE
AND PARTICIPATION

Humanities Research Centre,
University of York.
10am - 5pm, Friday 12th
August

Bringing together professionals, volunteers and academics for a conversation about who cares for our heritage. A series of presentations and roundtables will discuss:

- What is expertise? Who has expertise?
- Should we work collaboratively? Why? How?

The event will incorporate archaeology, museums, planning, heritage sites, digital design and more. Keynote speakers include:

- Mia Ridge - Digital Curator at the British Library and editor of 'Crowdsourcing Our Cultural Heritage'.
- Paul Buddery - Consultant and former Director of the RSA.

Come and be part of the conversation. If you would like to give a short provocation on one of the questions above, please contact Harald Fredheim (lhf506@york.ac.uk) or Pippa Gardner (pra08pg@shef.ac.uk). For more information, visit:
